The Interagency Fair Lending Examination Procedures were revised in late 2009. Since then (perhaps in response to the foreclosure crunch) fair lending continues to appear in speeches and other pronouncements by various regulators. Their comments, coupled with updated exam procedures, should be a warning for financial institutions regarding potentially difficult fair lending examinations in the future. The exam procedures made clarifications, and give us a glimpse of the future. Preparing now – before the examination – makes the best sense for every institution.

Bankers should be asking themselves some key questions:

- How does my bank's fair lending program stack up?
- Does my bank's internal or external fair lending review function meet current expectations?
- Will my bank be prepared for its next fair lending examination?

This webinar will explore the regulation's most dangerous areas, with significant references to the fair lending examination procedures to inform you of what to expect from examiners, as well as common sense reviews that every bank can use to assure proper adherence to the regulations. The participant materials will serve as a valuable resource to assist you in understanding the regulation, and include tools to assist in your internal review efforts.

Continuing Education: Attendance verification for CE credits provided upon request.
